Pearl Stable, San Antonio, Texas July 12, 2011

CHARLES ALSDORF

Charles Alsdorf, Director, Advisory Services, Deloitte Financial Advisory Services LLP, has over 19 years of experience in valuation, strategy, decision analysis and corporate finance. He focuses his practice on evaluating strategic investment decisions in times of volatility and change. Charles leads the capital efficiency practice, which deploys leading strategy and quantitative methodologies to help companies make optimal decisions in the face of a portfolio of many competing strategic investment options. He is one of the service offering leaders in Deloitte's Enterprise Sustainability program. He was also one of five Deloitte recipients of Deloitte's Eminence Fellowship program for his work in capital efficiency, and one of a dozen recipients of Deloitte's Innovation Quest competition (with over 2,000 submissions) for his work in integrating Deloitte's offerings for CFOs regarding capital budgeting, capital structure and M&A decision making. Prior to joining Deloitte, Charles served as vice president of technology strategy for Standard & Poor's global bond rating business. Before that he was director of valuation for a global professional services firm. He has worked extensively with clients in energy, infrastructure, natural resources, technology, and financial services. He also served as financial advisor on privatization and project finance transactions and completed numerous engagements in such countries as Russia, Georgia, Hungary, Poland, South Africa, China, Australia, Canada, Ecuador, Brazil and Argentina.

Charles holds a BA from Brown University and an MBA from the Yale University School of Management with a major in strategy and finance. He also completed an Edgar M. Bronfman Graduate Fellowship at the Moscow Economic Academy in Russia. He has passed the Level III CFA exam, and served as chair of the Yale School of Management New York Alumni Association. He also serves as the Northeast leader for Deloitte Financial Advisory Services' Diversity and Inclusion programs.
